The Conkling men are wanting too much pork for a shilling.

Postmaster General James is still marching on in the good work of cleaning out the star route thieves.

A railway contractor in Southern California is employing Indians to work on the road, with a good deal of success. They remain sober and do a great deal of efficient labor.

It is said by an enthusiastic admirer of Mr. Conkling that he surveys the situation at Albany "with splendid philosophy and good humor." Mr. Conkling is preparing to let himself down easy.

Although sorely depressed by disease, Mr. Blaine does not purpose to allow the summer to go without having a general good time. He is preparing for a regular campaign of fun in Maine and at the fashionable resorts.

The men who have been kicked out of office recently, because they have been investigated and found to have been thieves, are now howling about the corruption of the party, and every star route and treasury swindler is joining in the chorus.

Mr. Conkling should be at least fair with the administration men. He charges Depew with being a corporation lawyer, when he himself has rendered the great corporations of New York as much valuable service as any man who ever occupied a seat in the United States Senate.

The publishers of Potter's Monthly announce a midsummer holiday number for August, to contain a choice selection of seasonable and well-written papers by some of the best known and most popular American writers. Several of the articles which will appear have been especially prepared for the number, and on subjects exceedingly apropos, such as an article on "Sils and the Silk-Worm," a new industry now adapting itself to many of our American homes. In point of illustrations, also, the number will greatly surpass any yet published, as neither pains nor expense will be spared to make it both interesting and attractive.

The Milwaukee Sentinel says that Secretary Windom "looks at everything through Presidential spectacles," and for this reason will not be apt to push the investigation into the frauds in the treasury department. We think this is hardly a fair estimate of the man. Of course, no one who knows anything of Secretary Windom, will doubt his personal honesty or official integrity. If he knows of frauds existing in his department, begun under the administration of Mr. Hayes, the country has faith that Secretary Windom will do as Postmaster General James is doing, hunt them up and kick the swindlers out of office. We do not think that Mr. Windom would cover up fraud for the purpose of helping his presidential chances, because he is too much of a man to engage in that kind of business; and even from a most selfish point of view, if he has the presidential fever, it would be bad policy to cover up fraud.

Mr. Conkling is evidently not for a compromise in the senatorial struggle. In his speech to the men who are supporting him, he urged them not to break, never to compromise, but to hold fast to him from first to last. When victory is probable or even possible, this kind of talk is very stalwart and encouraging; but in the face of defeat, and in opposition to sound principles, it becomes mere buncumb. There is no possible hope for Mr. Conkling during the present session, and there is not for Mr. Platt. If a sufficient number of Democrats can be induced to remain away from the Legislature, there is a probability that the Depew vote will be high enough to elect him. But this may not take place as the Democrats could not absent themselves without creating the suspicion that it was done at the convenience of the Depew men. As matters stand now, there are no indications that the present session will settle the senatorial question. Unless there should be a general move on the part of the Democrats to stay away, there will be an adjournment without an election. The boast that the Conkling men will stick till the 31st of December or elect the ex-Senator is as idle as the boasting in the Senate, last spring, that the Republicans would never back down, but would remain in session until they elected officers, when such an election was out of all question.

Corporal punishment has been reintroduced into the schools of Chicago, by a vote of 8 to 4 in the board of education. There has been some modification of the old rule, however, in the present case the punishment to be permitted in extreme cases, and then only by the principal of the school. After a pretty thorough trial it was found necessary to make at least a partial restoration of corporal punishment in order to maintain proper discipline in the schools, and when the power to punish in this manner is judiciously exercised, there is no doubt that it will result in much good. As a general rule that kind of punishment is to be censured, but in exceptional cases proper discipline can not be secured without it. For several years it has been the custom not to hire female teachers who are married. Several times, the question has been discussed by the Chicago board, and pretty strong arguments have been made in favor of unmarried female teachers, showing that as a general rule the unmarried are capable of doing more constant and efficient service than women who are married. But school teachers will sometimes get married, and an attempt was made to pass an order making the marriage of a female teacher equivalent to a resignation of her position. The motion was lost, however, which is a credit to the board.

ON THE BEACH.

The President and Cabinet and General Grant Having Fun on the Beach at Long Branch.

Long Branch, June 22.—Secretaries Windom and Hunt and Postmaster General James arrived this evening. Secretaries Lincoln meeting them at Monmouth Junction. General Grant arrived from New York. The General is stopping with his son Jesse in a cottage opposite the hotel, where their meals are served. Secretary Lincoln is a guest of General Porter. The remainder of the cabinet have rooms in the hotel. The President was out riding when Grant arrived. While Garfield was at dinner Grant visited the hotel, but they did not meet. To-night at 9 o'clock Garfield was closely closeted with Secretary Windom. Secretaries James, Hunt, and Lincoln were out riding at the time. Later the President and all the members of the cabinet here were in consultation. Garfield, Windom, Hunt, and James are in consultation. Acting-Secretary Rockwell informed the reporter that nothing can be obtained of the correspondence between Garfield and Grant, and the meeting of the President and cabinet in private. The Seventh Regiment Veterans will be reviewed by Garfield and the cabinet at 11 to-morrow, and by Grant from his son's cottage on the opposite side of the avenue. Grant is expected to preside at the Pennsylvania editors' dinner to-morrow.

DISAPPOINTMENT.

The Star-Route Prosecutors not satisfied with the Adjournment of the Courts.

Washington, June 22.—It is ascertained that the star route prosecutors are not satisfied that the local judges have arranged to adjourn their courts practically from July 1 until the middle of September, and not allow any one an opportunity to present the star-route cases to the grand jury. Meanwhile both the grand and petit juries have been impanelled, and the star-route contractors, if they be disposed to resort to crooked means, will have more than two months in which to operate on both juries, in the hope of finding a dishonest man. It is just to the court, however, to say that this vacation is the customary one, and it is a season of the year when, ordinarily, it is very difficult to transact business when such an election was out of all question.

HE NEVER SAID IT.

Ex-President Hayes Says He Never Made Any Such Statement.

Washington, June 22.—A recent publication purporting to give some disparaging and remarks by ex-President Hayes about Secretary Blaine. The Secretary wrote a note to the ex-President inquiring about the authenticity of the report. Hayes replied at once, concluding in these words:

"I have to state that the whole paragraph in which your name occurs is a fabrication, and that not one of the statements contained in it referring to you was either made or authorized by me."

FROM ALBANY.

Renewed Enthusiasm Among the Administration Men.

ALBANY, June 23.—The Administration conference to-night was marked by increased enthusiasm and a greater unanimity of feeling among the members. Assemblymen Turk and Hamilton were present for the first time, and both are expected to go for Depew in a day or two. Skinner made a speech, in which he said he had carefully canvassed his district. He represented a large constituency of Grangers, but he had never been reproached for sustaining Depew. That gentleman had many warm admirers in his section, while he had been unable to discover any who desired the return of Conkling and Platt. The sentiment of the meeting was in favor of pushing Wheeler and Depew as high as possible. The friends of the former say he will obtain fifty-four or fifty-five votes to-morrow, and it is asserted that Depew will have as many Assemblymen. Alvord seems to have little confidence that the latter can be elected. He said to-night that the half-breeds wanted the long term, and were willing to support Wheeler on the short term, if the administration strength on the long term would be thrown to Lapham or Crowley. He regarded such a combination as probable, and seemed to favor it. The Bucks are rather quiet to-night. Conkling went west, to Utica, it is thought, this afternoon, but Arthur and Platt are on the ground to look after the Buck interests.

NOT FOR A FORTUNE.

"Phew! I wouldn't marry her if she'd a fortune. Poor girl, she'd be all right if she took Spring Blossom, the best thing in the world for offensive breath. Prices 50 cents, trial bottles ten cents."

WISCONSIN EPISCOPALIANS.

MILWAUKEE, June 22.—There was a lively time to-day in the Episcopal Diocese of Wisconsin, now in session in this city. After the election of minor officers the old canon or cathedral question regarding an inherited right of the bishop and the assessment of church dues came up for consideration. The matter was formally disposed of last year, but was called to-day to be amended in a minor detail or two. Moses M. Strong, a prominent politician and Episcopalian, had a report to make against the former action of the council in the premises. Bishop Weller called him to order a time or two, and, not obeying, he was given his choice to stop reading or leave the room. He chose the latter, and left amid great excitement. Hot discussions followed, and at a late hour the matter was laid over until to-morrow.

Frank Bardal, North Bennett street, Buffalo, says, "I have tried your arsenic as a family medicine and have never come across anything to do so much good in so short a time in cases of indigestion, dyspepsia and derangement of the stomach; I strongly recommend it. Price $1, trial size, 10 cents."

AGAINST POND.

BOSTON, June 22.—Judge Field decided the Pond divorce case this afternoon in favor of Mrs. Pond. He remarked that there was no direct evidence in support of Major Pond's allegations of adultery. Even if Mrs. Pond's testimony be entirely excluded, the libellant had failed to properly substantiate his charge, and he therefore ordered the libel to be dismissed. This announcement was received with an effort at applause by the spectators, and Mrs. Pond was congratulated by her counsel and friends. Mrs. Pond was expected to testify to the share Henry Ward Beecher had in her marriage with Pond, but her counsel purposely refrained from questioning her on the subject, as it might have opened the way for sharp questioning by the Major's lawyer.

A HEAVY FAILURE.

MILWAUKEE, June 22.—Albert Slocum, the largest manufacturer of leghorn goods from the imported straw, made a voluntary assignment to A. Morawetz to-day. Nominal assets, $191,129; liabilities, about $253,000. The preferred creditors are Shearburn, Bryan, Milwaukee, $35,000; Mrs. L. A. Slocum, of Massachusetts, $4,000; L. A. Slocum, of Massachusetts, $4,000; John Zimmerman, & Co., New York, $61,767.74; J. S. Plummer & Co., New York, $28,539.56; H. Weckherlin, New York, $14,515.56. Four hundred persons are thrown out of employment by the failure.

EVILS TO BE AVOIDED.

Over-eating is in one sense as productive of evil as intemperance in drinking. Avoid both, and keep the blood purified with Burdock Blood Bitters, and you will be rewarded with robust health and an invigorated system. Price $1; trial size 10 cents.

The Organist's Dilemma.

A good story is told by one of the Southern D. D.'s. He was pastor of the Church in the City of C—. The organ loft and choir gallery were immediately in the rear of the pulpit, and a little elevated above it. The organist was a German, who, though a fine performer, was not remarkable for great presence of mind, and was easily disconcerted. The hour for afternoon service had arrived, and, though the organist was in his place, the choir had not arrived. By some mishap, also, the key of the organ had been misplaced. The minister, not knowing these facts, slowly and solemnly arose, and, after announcing a hymn and reading it through, took his seat. There was no response from the organ or choir. Silence reigned supreme. Time passed on. The minister and congregation were becoming uneasy. All eyes were turned to the organ loft. At length the organist, with a fidgety manner and face as red as a beet, came to the railing in front of the loft, and in a tone evidently intended as a whisper, but which was distinctly heard by all, made the following startling announcement: "Mister breecher, mister breecher, we won't have no singing dits afternoon. De key not coomed, and de lady vat sings de soprano bees not coomed, and the rest of the peoples vat sings be not coomed, and de organ bees not coened, and we've no have no singing dits afternoon, mister breecher, dat's so." The effect may be readily imagined.

Founder.

Founder may be caused by sudden changes of temperature, over-exertion on hard road, over-feeding, large draughts of cold water, standing in snow or ice-water while warm; it may be due to rheumatism, or a sequel to strangles, influenza, etc. If the horse is shod remove the shoes. Cut down the rim of the hoof all round to such an extent that only the sole and the frog touches the ground. Do not pare away anything from the sole or frog. Then place him on an earthen floor and not on a plank floor unless it is kept well littered. Envelop the feet in large, soft, cold poultices of equal parts of bran and linseed meal. If much tenderness prevails scarify the skin above the hoof and place the feet in warm water to stimulate bleeding. Give five drams of aloes and a dram each of podophyllin and capsicum, made into a balsam. Give every hour from the beginning of the attack ten drops of tincture of aconite root, until six doses are given. If, after two or three days, the fever and pain in the feet do not decrease, thin down the sole at the toe and make an incision sufficiently deep to start bleeding, and encourage the same by immersing the feet in warm water. Thereafter apply blister round the pastern. Give loosening food. Subsequently give liberty outdoors when weather permits, during daytime.—Western Rural.

Bread Making in the East.

On our return an instructive sight awaited us. We saw how bread was baked in an adjoining building. It was done with a rapidity which explains how old the supply was prepared every day, and how if some guests arrived the house-wife could make the necessary provisions without delay. (Gen. xviii, 6.)

Among the Fellahs the dough is generally leavened. A large round hole in the ground, some one and one-half feet deep, and the same in diameter, forms the oven. In this lie some live coals, which as in Hosea's time (Hosea vii, 6), are not allowed to go out at night, and when baking has to be done are again revived.

The housewife first forms a lump of dough with her hand, then suddenly spreads it out with an indescribably rapid action of both hands—which can as little be imitated as a conjurer's movement—into a cake as thin as a leaf, which with a moistened dab or rag she presses into the hot oven, where it remains sticking. In a minute it begins to move, and is at once taken out to make room for the following one.

The bread is now ready, not thicker than parchment, not very relishing, and somewhat sandy on the outside, but really very enjoyable for any one who has a good appetite. Although of the size of a large plate, such a slice contains but little nourishment, and Jere-miah could hardly have been saved from starvation when only one such piece of bread was given him every day.—Odeell.

Victoria's Present Abode.

The Queen of England is staying at Osborne at present. The castle is a modern structure, regally furnished throughout, and commands a superb view of the surrounding country. It is situated on the Isle of Wight, a short distance from East Cowes. The grounds are quite extensive, embracing two hundred acres, under a high state of cultivation, and give evidence of the care and taste displayed by Prince Albert, who considered it a model farm during his lifetime. The Queen frequently walks about unattended and invariably returns salutes in the most pleasing manner. This island, the garden spot of England, is twenty-three miles long and fourteen miles wide. It contains a population of 66,000, and is separated from the mainland by the roadstead of Spithead and the Solent. The famous "Carrisbrook" Castle, in which Charles I. took refuge, is on this island, and is much visited on this account by sight-seeing Americans.

A convention of crows was witnessed by James Hillman, of Orwigsburg, Pa. As he entered the woods several thousand crows were perched in the trees. Soon sentinels took their places on the outskirts of the woods. The crows seemed engaged in an earnest debate. Some appeared to argue one way and some another. They separated in groups of a dozen or so, cawed and chattered for a while, and then met in great flocks. This continued for six days, during which time none of the crows in the neighborhood fields was touched. On the sixth day they suddenly flew away to the northward. They went in flocks of about 300 each, at intervals of five minutes and each flock had a leader.

THE HUMAN HAIR.

How to Preserve and Beautify It. Many persons abuse this delicate and beautiful ornament by burning it with alcoholic washes and plastering it with grease, which has no affinity for the skin, and is not absorbed. BURNETT'S COCONATE, a compound of Cocoonat Oil, etc., is unrivaled as a dressing for the hair—it is readily absorbed, and is peculiarly adapted to its various conditions, preventing its falling off and promoting its healthy growth.

Housekeepers should insist upon obtaining BURNETT'S FLAVORING EXTRACTS, for they are the best.

sider that all the leading veterinary surgeons and authorities have decided against its indiscriminate use, and that it is but seldom seen in that country. Besides, what would a Britisher think of us who constantly vaunt our system of economy in everything, when he saw on almost every horse he met an expensive piece of harness which is of no value except as a means of putting so much money into circulation through the medium of the harnessmakers? Far better put that money inside the stomachs of the too often needy animals.

The sum and the substance of the whole thing is that the use of the bearing-rein, as at present, is uncalled for, and therefore inhuman. It is the duty of one and all to put down inhumanity, but in the absence of legislative influence in the matter this duty lies upon the shoulders of every individual who has anything to do with horses. Especially does it lie upon the shoulders of our medical men, whose role in life extends farther than the treatment of their patients and the earning of a livelihood; but more especially does it devolve upon the Christian clergymen of this city, who may find an instance where one whom they all desire to copy and to hold forth as a model did not consider it too cosmopolitan to help a poor donkey from a pit on the Sabbath day.—Cor. Chicago Tribune.

The Boston Girl's Woe.

"The snow has drifted around my heart," sighed a fair young Boston girl, as she and her Brooklyn hostess sat on the floor, lacing their boots, the other morning. "No longer do the spring violets bloom in my life."

"May I inquire what has chagrined you?" asked the Brooklyn girl sympathetically.

"I will tell you all, from cosmos to Omega. You shall know why existence is henceforth a burnt prairie to me. Ah, the dream has flown. The grasses are bending over the grave of that bright hope."

"Did he leave you?" invoked the Brooklyn damsel, in tears.

"Not voluntarily. We were segregated, but through no fault of ours. It was the dispelling of a vision."

"But won't he come back?"

"I fear me may. Such a differentiation is not to be overcome. I will tell you all. We loved. The moon couldn't beam, but he'd hitch up a team and drive into my outstretched arms."

"My!" ejaculated the Brooklyn girl.

"Always." He came until I looked for him as for the stars. Every night until one. Then he came no more to our brown-stone mansion door no more. And my heart is sad and weary. Listen. I have a father. Pitiless, cold, relentless, but still he is my father, though he has frozen up my young blood. I assure you it is really all icebergs."

"Did he say the young man mustn't come any more?" asked the breathless listener.

"He did not. He welcomed him, like the whirlpool's rings that swallow up all sorts of things. Gave him cigars and talked with him. Pa was too awfully sweet at first, and that's what makes me sit sad and sighing, and feel as though I am surely dying. I'm just perfectly, terribly cut up about it."

"Then how did he come to go away? I'm crazy to know."

"You shall hear how the disintegration originated. All the time pa was treating him so nicely he didn't like him. He was making up his mind to have him leave. Oh! the saddest word of tongue or pen is the torblessness of these bad men. Pa separated us. Like the pouring of the vengeful sea he separated my own and me."

"How did he do it? What steps did he take?"

"Give me your attention. You shall know the facts from the protoplasm to the finish. I will tell you of my awful doom, right here in your cheerful little bedroom. I wanted an Easter hat, I said to pa. Must have it. Was coming to see you, you know. Says pa. 'Give up the lover or the hat. Can't have both.'

"And you?"

"Give him up, of course! How could I help it? The hat is lovely, but my heart is stone. I move alone without any comfort. It was hard to wreck him, but there was no alternative. Pa made me choose. Don't you think it pretty?"

And the two girls went down to breakfast, the forlorn girl singing, in a low, sweet voice. "The good sword is rusted, the good knight is busted!"—Brooklyn Eagle.

How Justice Is Administered in Tunis.

A correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle writes:

One of the most curious and interesting features of Tunis is the Judiciary Court that is held by the Bey, generally at the Bardo Palace, every Saturday. The forms are as simple and as primitive as those in use during the era of the Caliphs, every subject having the privilege to address his sovereign on such occasions. But, nevertheless, the justice of the Bey is administered with all the pomp and magnificence of an Eastern potentate. On such occasions the Bey is preceded to the palace door and to the court of audience by his heralds, followed by his Ministers and the members of his family, all clad in rich costumes, and who stand on each side of the Bey as he ascends the two steps that lead to the throne, and, after having made a slight bow to the assembly, he seats himself under the magnificent golden seat that serves as a dais to the throne. The elect of the Prophet, the Moushir Mohammed-es-Sadok, Bey of Tunis, is a man of imposing presence, with fine features and small, black, piercing eyes that glisten as brightly as the countless diamonds that ornament the long pipe he holds to his lips, while he caresses his long, silky beard with the other hand, listening, in a grave, unimpassioned manner, to the complaints that are brought before him. The further end of the judicial hall is filled with all the types of people familiar to these Oriental cities, all being allowed free ingress to the Bey's presence. Litigious questions of the most complex character are decided in a few moments, with a few words, and sometimes by a simple gesture. One of these, the cleaving of the air by an outstretched hand, is of grave significance, being simply a mandate for decapitation. As the executioner is always at hand the sentence is carried out immediately—a fact greatly conducive to public morality. But under the present regime such cases are rare, as Mohammed-es-Sadok is certainly the most lenient and civilized Bey who has ruled over Tunis since many a century. His chief faults are irresolution of character and a constant dread of the advance of civilization, especially under the protection of the French standards.

We Americans make the daily boast that in everything we improve upon Great Britain. Surely this is but empty boasting when we come to consider Mr. Jay Cooke has entirely recovered his fortune. He is now said to be worth over $3,000,000.

A Cough, Cold, or Sore Throat should be stopped. Neglect frequently results in an incurable Lung Disease or Consumption. BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES do not disorder the stomach like cough syrups and balsams, but act directly on the inflamed parts, allaying irritation, giving relief in Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Catarrh, and the Throat Troubles which Singers and Public Speakers are subject to. For thirty years Brown's Bronchial Troches have been recommended by physicians, and always give perfect satisfaction. Having been tested by wide and constant use for nearly an entire generation, they have attained well-merited rank among the few staple remedies of the age. Sold at 25¢ a box everywhere. marltd-lacs-thur-fri-33wly
